

ONEWORLD HEALTH

ROLE Public Health Intern

TYPE Administrative

LOCATION Charleston, SC, USA

REPORTS TO Volunteer Coordinator

INTERNSHIP DESCRIPTION:

OneWorld Health is a rapidly growing grassroots NGO that exists to provide quality, affordable health care to people in need, specifically in the countries of Nicaragua and Uganda.

This internship is geared towards helping undergraduate Public Health students gain professional office experience as well as a better understanding of global health research, social entrepreneurship and organizational communication.

THIS INTERNSHIP WILL GIVE YOU THE OPPORTUNITY TO:

- PARTICIPATE IN GROUNDBREAKING RESEARCH
Work as a research assistant to an MPH student (Masters in Public Health) as he/she seeks to solve a real-world problem that OWH is facing in the developing world.
- EXAMINE COUNTRY-SPECIFIC HEALTH INDICATORS
Record data from medical trip patient forms into our Google Drive database.
- FAMILIARIZE YOURSELF WITH THE GLOBAL CLIMATE
Become familiar with international Global Health issues. Write a monthly post highlighting a current issue of interest for OWH's blog.
- ENGAGE IN THE HEALTH COMMUNITY
Attend regularly scheduled seminars and discussions led by OWH staff members as well as other Global Health events within the medical community.

WE ARE LOOKING FOR CANDIDATES WHO EMBODY THE FOLLOWING:

- A passion for global, sustainable healthcare systems in the developing world
- Superior research skills & a drive to solve complex real world issues
- Computer literacy & ability to operate Google Drive
- Strong work ethic and ability to work independently
- Flexible and creative, possessing a good attitude and zeal for learning
- Must be able to travel to OWH's Charleston Offices

Candidates must be able commit to a 4 month long internship and work 10-15 hours a week.

Interested applicants should send cover letters and resumes to claire@oneworldhealth.com
